Hi Josh and Jerry. You know, because the year hasn't been weird enough already, I have something else to chew on. One of my history teacher friends from SHS sent me this photo last night. He came across it while doing some research on the protests over the weekend. He says that antifa and other groups are currently working to ID the men in the picture. They are part of a far-right extremist group known as the Proud Boys, and are hugely racist and sexist. When someone recognizes one of the men, an attempt is made to publicly call them out by going to their work place, bombing their social media, etc. My friend thinks that #16 in the back row looks like me. I can kind of see the resemblance. He felt I should give Daryl P. a heads up in case he gets a call. I figured I could at least give you a heads up. Do you advise me to contact Daryl? It all seems ridiculous to me. -Ryan
