OKAY WOW SOME STUFF HAPPENED.

So I was at a BLM (black lives matter) protest today, and a ton of stuff happened. Not all of it was good.

For one, there was a truck that swerved to hit some protesters but thankfully missed. The police were on his butt right after.

Some guys with guns showed up and hung around behind us for a while, but eventually disappeared to who knows where.

There were people taking pictures everywhere, and a bunch were taken of us! That was neat. We were wearing rainbow suspenders and ties.

I saw my current band teacher and my future band teacher at the protest, which was really cool. I got to say hi and tell my current band-teacher that I rick-rolled him in one of my assignments (which I did).

When we were leaving someone nearly drove the front of their car into our bumper, on purpose as an intimidation tactic.

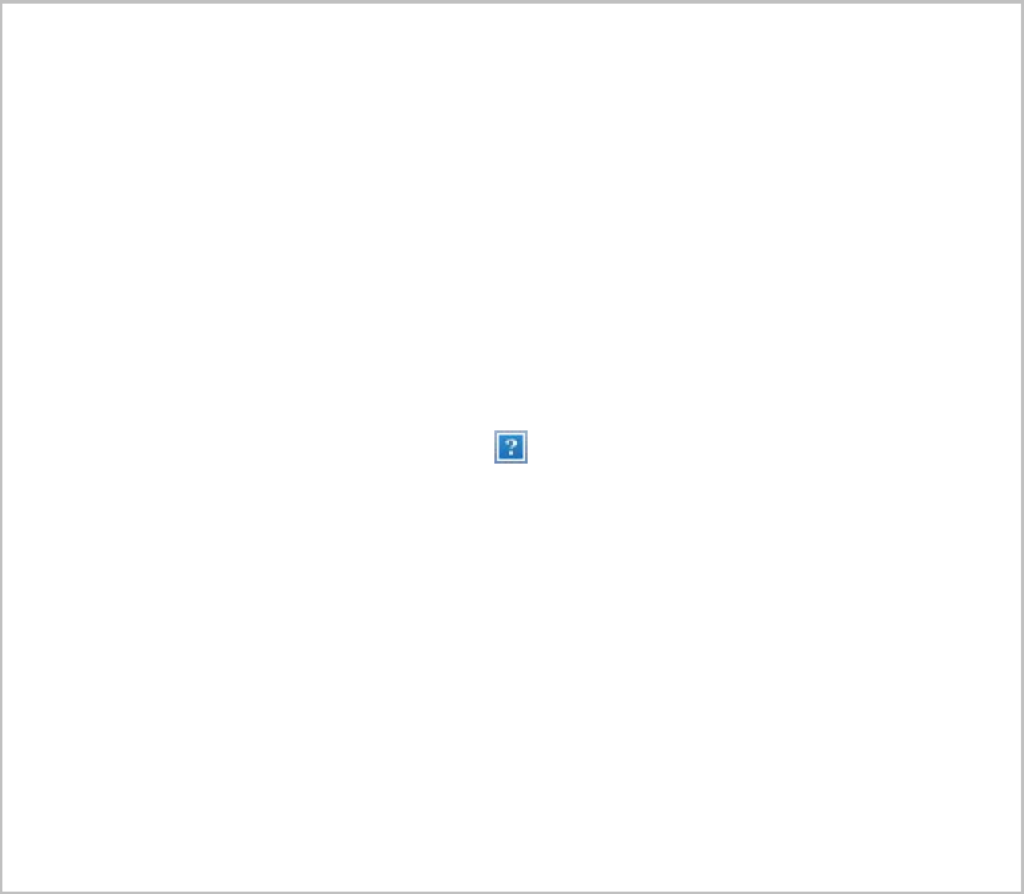

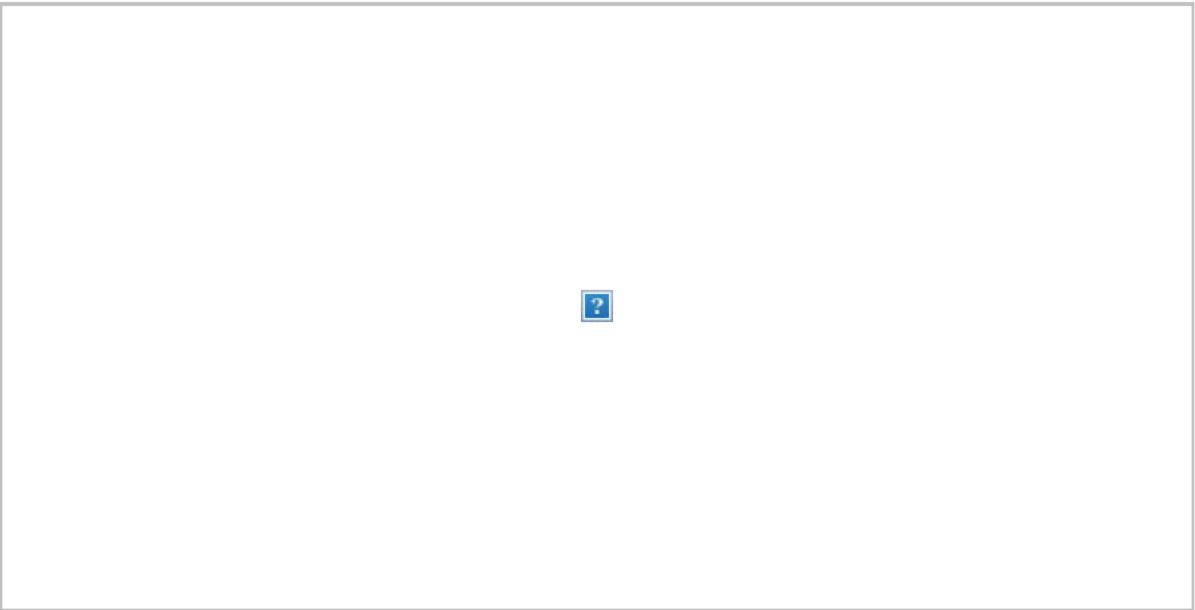

Also while we were leaving a white supremacist thing was forming down-town. My dad went down later and got a video of people drinking with guns in their hands. He reported them to the police and gave them the video.

So I was playing DnD, and our dorms were randomly infested with capybara, and then had the most amazing conversation on Discord.

Playing DnD and one of my party members just licked a battery
Another is badly playing bagpipes on a street corner while another party member is pick-pocketing the crowd around him
I forced my DM to describe the boar I was eating
