

MEDIA · Published 3 hours ago

Wendell Goler, longtime Fox News White House correspondent, dead at 70

By Brian Flood | Fox News

Former Fox News White House correspondent Wendell Goler dies at age 70

Wendell Goler joined Fox News Channel in 1996 as a correspondent and worked his way up to senior White House foreign affairs correspondent before retiring in 2014.

Longtime Fox News White House correspondent Wendell Goler died this week at age 70.

"Wendell was a gifted correspondent, a wonderful colleague and a FOX News original whose reporting was respected on both sides of the aisle. We extend our deepest condolences to his wife Marge and his entire family," Fox News Media CEO Suzanne Scott said.

Goler joined Fox News Channel in 1996 as a correspondent and worked his way up to senior White House foreign affairs correspondent. The Washington D.C.-based reporter covered five presidents over 28 years at the White House during his storied career.

THE LATEST FROM FOX NEWS ON THE 2020 PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

Fox News senior vice president and D.C. bureau chief Bryan Boughton said he will always treasure the days he spent working with Goler and will "cherish what he taught me" about journalism.

"Wendell Goler was a great journalist and helped build Fox News from the ground up," Boughton said. "Wendell was a professional who pursued all angles of a story so he could report it fairly. Wendell was also a great guy to work with and brought a lot of fun and smiles to our long hours of travel around the world."

Goler provided in-depth coverage of political reactions to major events, including the acquittal of George Zimmerman and the Congressional hearing on the attack of the U.S. Consulate in Benghazi, Libya.

WENDELL GOLER'S LAST DAY AT FOX NEWS: 'HELL OF A RIDE'

He reported on numerous international and national news stories, ranging from the impeachment trial of President Bill Clinton to conflicts in Syria. The veteran reporter also covered the political response to the fall of Lehman Brothers in 2008, the recession in 2007 and the Bush Administration's post-9/11 policy changes.