Matt Marks, a composer and musician who was at the epicenter of a diverse community of open-minded artists as a founding member of the contemporary chamber orchestra Alarm Will Sound, died on May 11 in St. Louis. He was 38.

The cause was heart failure, said Mary Kouyoumdjian, a composer and Mr. Marks's fiancée.

Mr. Marks, who lived in Brooklyn, had just performed in St. Louis with Alarm Will Sound, she said.
