 PRESS RELEASE *****

CITY OF SAN FRANCISCO AND HEALTH CARE
CONSORTIUM TO PROVIDE COVID-19 VACCINATIONS AT MOSCONE CENTER

New high-volume vaccination site opens Friday, February 5 providing vaccinations to health care workers and community members age 65 and over

San Francisco, CA — San Francisco Mayor London N. Breed and a consortium of health care organizations today announced that a high-volume COVID-19 vaccination site will open in the Moscone Center on Friday, February 5. The site will initially serve health care workers and community members ages 65 and older, by appointment only and in accordance with the State's prioritization plan. The site will eventually allow for vaccinations on a broad scale and at a dynamic pace once adequate vaccine supply is received from the state.

The Moscone Center vaccination site is part of a collaborative effort between the City and County of San Francisco and the San Francisco Department of Public Health partnering with a consortium of statewide health care organizations: Kaiser Permanente, Adventist Health, the California Medical Association, CommonSpirit/Dignity, and Futuro Health. The California Primary Care Association will also participate in this effort to ensure broad, equitable access to the sites.

The Moscone Center's spacious and accessible location is part of a network of high-volume vaccination sites organized by the City and County of San Francisco and health care providers. The consortium will enable partnering health care organizations to leverage resources and staff, align operations for efficient and safe vaccine delivery, and offer convenient parking for patients if needed.

"We are working every day to set up systems to get people vaccinated as soon as we have the supply," said Mayor Breed. "I'm thankful to Kaiser Permanente for organizing this consortium, which is working with us to expand our vaccine network through this initiative at Moscone Center. As vaccines come to our city, whether it's through our Department of Public Health or our private health care partners, we need to do everything we can to move it quickly and efficiently. I know the consortium members have the experience, clinical expertise, and resources to help us reduce barriers to vaccine access and broaden opportunity for equitable, optimal health and well-being throughout San Francisco."

"We thank the State for making additional vaccine supply available, so we can help open this high-volume vaccination site and at the same time expand our ability to provide vaccine to our members," said Carrie Owen Plietz, regional president for Kaiser Permanente in Northern California. "The success of this site will depend on receiving additional vaccine in the coming weeks. As we receive more vaccine, we can continue to get it in the arms of our members and the public, at our medical centers and at sites like this."

The high-volume vaccination site at Moscone Center will open Friday at a lower vaccination capacity due to limited vaccine supply. All vaccinations will be by appointment only on the state's MyTurn website for anyone eligible to receive the vaccine regardless of health coverage. Once adequate supply of vaccine is distributed by the state of California, the Moscone Center site will be able to administer 7,000 to 10,000 COVID-19 vaccinations per day, depending on supply. Hours of vaccination will initially be limited but will ramp up and be available from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily.

“This high-volume vaccination site is made possible because of the strong partnership between Kaiser Permanente, the consortium, and the City and County of San Francisco. Together, we can leverage the strengths of both organizations to establish a site that has the capacity, the staff, the infrastructure, and the community support to help protect those who live and work in the City by vaccinating as many people as fast as possible,” said Dr. Grant Colfax, Director of Public Health. “These partnerships with health care providers are key to meeting our goal of vaccinating everyone who lives or works in San Francisco in order to help bring an end to this pandemic.”

The City has created a new webpage for people who live and work in San Francisco to find vaccination sites in San Francisco, including the new Moscone Center site, and book appointments. People who are eligible to be vaccinated can sign-up for an appointment at: SF.gov/getvaccinated. For more information on eligibility and how to make a COVID-19 vaccine appointment at the Moscone Center, go to SF.gov/getvaccinated or the MyTurn website.

About the City of San Francisco’s Network of Vaccination Sites

The Moscone Center site advances the City’s vaccination strategy to make receiving the vaccine as convenient and comfortable as possible for as many people as possible. High-volume vaccination sites, like Moscone Center, are one critical piece of a larger network of vaccination distribution that also includes neighborhood vaccine access sites, community clinics, pharmacy partnerships, and mobile vaccination teams. Once the vaccine locations are fully operational, pending vaccine supply, the City has a goal of facilitating over 10,000 vaccine doses per day.

On January 22, the City opened the first high-volume vaccination site at the City College of San Francisco and has a plan to open a third high-volume site at the SF Market in the Bayview. The City College site has the capacity to serve as many as 3,000 people per day when supply increases. These high-volume sites will serve anyone eligible to receive the vaccine regardless of health coverage and all require that patients make an appointment.

On Monday, February 1, the first neighborhood vaccine access site opened in the Mission District at 24th and Capp Streets. Neighborhood vaccine access sites are part of the City’s targeted efforts to ensure communities most highly-impacted by COVID-19 receive equitable access to the vaccine. The site will have an initial capacity of 120 vaccinations per day and, when vaccine capacity increases, this site may expand to conduct 200-400 vaccinations per day. The 24th Street site has the additional benefit of being adjacent to a significant transit hub, ensuring that it is accessible and convenient for the community health workers and other eligible people that it will serve.

The City is working to expand neighborhood vaccine access sites to the Bayview, Excelsior, Visitacion Valley and other neighborhoods with the highest infection rates for COVID-19 and limited access to health care services. The Department of Public Health and its community partners continue to vaccinate people through community clinics in the Western Addition, Chinatown, Bayview, Outer Sunset, and Potrero. For example, on Tuesday, February 2, the Department of Public Health expanded vaccination services at the Southeast Health Center for people who are 65 years or older and live in one of two highly COVID-impacted zip codes in the southeastern part of the city that include Bayview Hunters Point and Visitacion Valley.

Additionally, the City is partnering with Safeway pharmacies to bring vaccines to various neighborhoods, including a new site at San Francisco State University.

About the Consortium

The consortium, initiated by Kaiser Permanente, includes Adventist Health, the California Medical Association, Dignity Health, and Futuro Health. California Primary Care Association will also be working with the consortium to ensure broad equitable access to the sites.

Dear Colleagues,

Happy February! I am so delighted to announce that we will open two more branches this month as SFPL To Go locations. Both the Bayview/Linda Brooks-Burton Branch and the Park Branch are scheduled to open by February 16. That day we also anticipate opening two more Community Hubs for distance learning at the Sunset and Ortega branch libraries. Hat's off to the entire COB team for the hard work this complex effort entails. We all look forward to bringing more library services to our patrons and more supportive learning services to the youth in our community.

This week, we will have another Library Commission meeting on our FY 22 and 23 budgets, as well as a presentation on the data related to our activities this past year. It's been a unique but outstanding year of service delivery. I hope you will tune in if you have the time.

At our last Commission meeting we convened in honor of author, scholar, historian, and former SFPL Chinatown Branch Librarian Judy Yung. We all lost a valued colleague and library advocate. I wanted to share with you the passing of Judy Yung, for her, that was just issued at the American Library Association Midwinter Conference.

I was so inspired by the Racial Equity Committee's presentation on Friday afternoon and all your fearless and informative questions, comments, book recommendations, and more. I am absolutely committed to freeing up time for our staff to do this important work.

As Mayor London Breed noted, our library department is leading the way in addressing racial equity in the City: We need to lead by example in our city departments and hold ourselves by the standards that we hold others in community. We cannot push for a more equitable city if our own city government is not living up to that standard.

I was also heartened, as I hope you all were, by the appreciation she expressed for all of you and the work you do:

All of you have stepped up to keep San Francisco running. Adapting to this whole new virtual meeting environment and ensuring the City continues to serve its residents. Hundreds of library employees responded to the call, more than every other department, to serve as Disaster Service Workers...I hope you know how much the city appreciates your contributions.

If you didn't get a chance to tune in, a recording will be made available on staffnet and shared by the Racial Equity Committee.

I also want to share an invite to participate in Palm Beach County Library's free Writers Live online event tomorrow, particularly if you are interested in the historical experience of African Americans and libraries.

Dr. Aisha Johnson is an educator and revelator of Southern intellectual history and an advocate for untold stories. She is committed to archival research, the production and professional development of archivists and staff, and redefining the scholar. With a Ph.D. and Master's in library and information studies (ILIS), Johnson-Jones stands on a soapbox for unveiling the history of underrepresented communities through the use of historical documents. Her latest publication, "The African American Struggle for Library Equality: The Untold Story of the Julius Rosenwald Fund Library Program," is the first comprehensive history which exposes historic library practices that discriminated against blacks and the necessary remedies implemented to cure this injustice.

Another inspiring program this past week, was the wonderful, virtual Night of Ideas two-hour online event on Thursday night. If you missed it, I encourage you to watch it on YouTube <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=2X2V21v0a8k>. It was a remarkable and powerful presentation and I think all the SFPL staff whose work and ideas supported this effort. As our SFMOA partners said:

"It's a testament to both the community we're privileged to live among and the heart behind everyone here who prizes it, who lifts it up, and who dreams better for it."

As we heard at Night of Ideas from UCSF's Dr. Bob Wachter regarding how well San Francisco has combatted COVID-19, we have much to be proud of as a City for all of our vigilance. I encourage all of you to stay up to date with the latest information from the Department of Human Resources: <https://dhr.org/covid-19>

And I also want to share the link for Mayor Breed's vaccine town hall meeting for city employees last week, in case you missed it: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=xnpu1fN8Y8&feature=youtu.be>
