Subject: Re: OIC Current Issues Update: Community Research RFP

Dear Allanté,

Thank you for your note. I am truly sorry for the trauma you experienced. Please know that was not at all anyone's intention, least of all mine. That said, there is no doubt that you were hurt by it. Please accept my deepest apologies.

This work of processing feelings and experiences and attitudes in historical and current contexts, all in the effort to realize a more inclusive and welcoming environment, is a messy business. Regrettably, we will all make mistakes along the way. I am sorry that I have made them, myself.

Yet, I know the OIC to be an organization comprised of community members who are deeply, genuinely and sincerely committed to this effort, as fraught as it is with opportunities to make mistakes. Michael Carter counsels us all to wade bravely into the fray, knowing that we WILL make mistakes along the way, but with the understanding that for those of us who are genuine and sincere in our intentions, these are mistakes borne of goodwill, not malice, and mistakes from which we will learn and grow.

Rosa Parks said, "To bring about change, you must not be afraid to take the first step. We will fail when we fail to try." Please know that the OIC is trying.

And thank you for the connection to Mary Tyler. I have already received a response from Mary thanking us for the RFP and offering to suggest other potential consultants as well.

All my best to you and your family. I hope to work with you sometime in the future.

Good evening, everyone.

I have thought for a very long time about how & when I would send this email -- but definitely not why. My experience in our last meeting was traumatic for a number of reasons. I'll share a bit about that here.

The Citizens For a Better Oakwood Schools Committee visited with us and shared some of the stories that were told in their survey about diversity, equity, and inclusion (or lack thereof). One story in particular struck me. It was the one about a Black boy in our community who received a drink order with an amalgamation of his name and the "n" word on it written by a classmate / employee. I immediately cut my camera off -- the same camera I used to show my 7-month-old son earlier in the meeting. I was overcome with emotion - heartbroken about the child in the story, other children who'd heard the word in the past, and children like my son who might have to hear it in the future.

Next on the agenda was the Wright Library Director / Oakwood Inclusion Committee Chair attending our meeting to explain how Burges & Burges had done an excellent job working with the library in the past. I was thrilled, yet still concerned that DEI work should be done by DEI specialists. (You've probably heard me point out numerous times that B&B stated that DEI work "wasn't rocket science" & that they had no experience with DEI-specific research in the past.)

Time at the end of our meeting was carved out for discussing other ideas, proposals, etc. It was at this point where I introduced Mary Tyler, a Black woman who was the former director of Dayton's National Conference for Community & Justice, a Certified Diversity Professional, and recommended by Michael Carter, Sinclair's Chief Diversity Officer (who facilitated OIC's "The Danger of a Single Story" discussion). I was met with responses: some positive, some ambivalent. But there was one interaction I want to draw attention to.

A meeting participant who knew Mary and had worked with her previously voiced concerns about wanting to know what Trump supporters felt. I was perplexed because -- why could Mary not find out what Trump supporters felt? Visitors from the Schools committee (referenced earlier) were confused too. We asked pointed questions to clarify. We were met with a statement that Mary might be perceived as "biased." One Schools member asked, "Biased because she's an equity consultant?" Response: a head shake. I asked, "Because she's Black?" Radio silence.

I've been through a rollercoaster of emotions since then. Shocked because I couldn't believe I'd experienced this in an inclusion meeting, of all places. Discouraged because it seemed as though a decision had already been made before I hit "Join". Embarrassed because I know how power & social change play out in a town with historically racist policies, yet I was naïve enough to believe this would be different.

This is a long-winded way of saying that I will no longer be participating in the Current Issues committee. To be the most effective I can be in the classroom, in this community, and for my son, this is the best decision for my psychological health. I truly hope that inclusion is the guiding light for all future decisions for the group. I hope that you reflect on social change that has occurred in the past & recognize all of the large & small obstacles that heroic individuals have faced along the way. Finally, I hope that this definition resonates with you: "Equity is constantly and consistently recognizing & redistributing power. Understand the institutional & historical origins of power. Then, seek to push power down & around, as you should make decisions with marginalized people, not for them."

Best,

Dear OIC Current Issues Committee Members,

I am happy to share with you that we have an approved RFP and process for receiving and evaluating the proposals for an OIC commissioned community research project. Many thanks to my colleagues on the OIC Leadership Team as we have worked to process the notion of conducting community research to further the work of the Oakwood Inclusion Coalition (OIC) in studying, promoting and celebrating "an inclusive, equitable, diverse and welcoming community for everyone who lives, works, visits, or passes through Oakwood" (as per the OIC mission statement). As we pursued this concept, it became clear that the Leadership Team of the OIC would need to review and approve the project, given that it would require fundraising, which only the OIC Leadership Team is empowered to do.

To that end, and also because we needed to address important questions about what the research is intended to accomplish, I proposed an RFP, which was then refined by the members of the OIC Leadership Team. I am happy to report that it has been approved, and some fundraising activity is already underway in anticipation of pursuing commissioned community research in the near future. Furthermore, at today's meeting of the OIC Leadership Team, the timeline and process for reviewing the proposals were approved, as well.

The approved RFP is attached. I have already shared it with Mary Tyler, as well as Burges & Burges Strategists. I would welcome your suggestions on any other researchers with whom the RFP should be shared.

Proposals will be reviewed and evaluated by a small task force of OIC Leadership Team and OIC Current Issues Committee members. Given that we are going into high summer (and that I hope some families are taking advantage of opportunities to get away and decompress after the last year and a half), our timeframe for receiving and reviewing proposals is somewhat generous, as noted below. In addition, time will be required for fundraising to support the costs, as well.

DEADLINE FOR PROPOSALS: COB July 30, 2021

PROJECTED REVIEW PERIOD: August 1 - 31, 2021

I am looking for a couple of OIC Current Issues Committee members to volunteer to serve on the review task force. We are envisioning a small group of perhaps 5 members in total: 2 Leadership Team, 2 Current Issues, and me. The work of that group will take place largely in August. I am already at work on drafting a rubric for use in evaluating the proposals. The task force will evaluate and then make a recommendation to the Leadership Team, which will make the final selection and authorize the expenditures.

Thank you all for your patience with this process! Of course, as a brand new organization, new procedures need to be established. But the efforts are worth it as we all work toward the goal, which is to study and better understand how Oakwood is perceived in order to then develop programs and events that celebrate "an inclusive, equitable, diverse and welcoming community" for everyone.

All my best,

~ Madeline

I am in agreement and concern about Alante's feeling but have to take issue with part of her statement:

"because I know how power & social change play out in a town with historically racist policies"

We certainly have problems with racism in Oakwood but her accusation means we have written and/or orally presented action guidelines promoting racism. I don't know of any such policies and care that she thinks they exist.

Allante,

First I apologize for my delayed response to your email voicing your concerns about your continued participation on the OIC. Thank you for your courage in calling various issues to our attention. I'm sorry that we will no longer benefit from your involvement, but I applaud your ability to recognize the steps you need to take to protect your energies and mental health. I will miss your insights.

Thank you and be well,

I want to send a compliment about one of your police men. On Sunday, the neighborhood mothers arranged a bicycle parade around the block on oakforest, acorn , thruston and Hathaway. Some onnd flagged down Officer Payne and he then took the time to stop. He talked with the children and then led the parade around the block. The kids were excited because he turned the lights on of his police car. Then he again started talking to the parents. He was a great representative of Oakwood and the police department. I know the parents were grateful for his interaction with the children.

Your police persons do an excellent job of dealing with the residents of Oakwood

Subject: 17 MORE HEROES NEEDED!!!!

Thank you to everyone who made an appointment!!! We only need 17 more heroes to fill the drive!

We still have 17 spots available for today, Wednesday, July 7th!!! We are panicked!!

I'm sure you have heard on the news what dire need for blood the Blood Center is experiencing right now. Supply is at a record low and coming off of a holiday weekend, it is crucial to fill our drives. Please consider making an appointment for TOMORROW right here at the OCC. There will be two buses parked in our parking lot by the tennis courts. How convenient!

If you've never given blood before, now is the time!! We will completely spoil you :)

Free cookies AND a T-shirt...what more could you ask for?!?!?!?!?

WEDNESDAY, JULY 7, 2021

12:00PM TO 6:00PM

Jennifer,

Can you please provide Cameron a FML packet. He informed me today that he is scheduled to have elbow surgery August 27. Anticipated recovery time is six weeks but he is hoping to return to work on a light duty assignment 10 to 14 days post-surgery.

Thanks,

Alan

Good Afternoon, Board Members,

We hope that you are all doing well! We are holding an in-person ESID Board meeting on Monday, July 12th at 10:30 A.M. to consider two PACE projects located in Dayton. We are still in the process of confirming our location, but the meeting will be held in downtown Dayton. If you cannot attend, please provide a signed proxy (form attached) at your earliest convenience. Please also let us know if anyone has any questions.

Also, if anyone by chance knows Stefanie Campbell's new email address and could forward that to us, we would appreciate it.

Best,
Brooke
