Caste Reading & Discussion

4 - 5:30PM, via Zoom. No cost, RSVP required.

Beyond factors such as race and class, a powerful system influences the lives and behaviors of a nations people, there is a powerful system that influences the lives and behaviors of a nations people — the hidden caste system. Written by Isabel Wilkerson, Caste links the similar systems of America, India, and Nazi Germany and offers the audience insight into how the people of these nations have been shaped by a rigid hierarchy of human rankings.

Throughout her book, Wilkerson explores the hidden eight pillars of caste systems across civilizations, including divine will, bloodlines, and stigma. Providing stories about people — including Martin Luther King, Jr., baseball's Satchel Paige, a single father and his toddler son, Wilkerson herself, and many others — illustrates ways that the caste system is experienced in everyday life.

Join Dayton's Judge Gerald Parker and Judge Walter H. Rice along with Moderator Joseph Saks, Esq. in a discussion of this groundbreaking book.

Previous Resident Shares Story of Inclusion

I moved to Oakwood because at the time my son was attending a local independent school, but I was uncertain I would be able to continue with his tuition payments. Because of that I started researching local public schools in the area and as a result of my research, I felt that Oakwood Schools would be a better fit. Ultimately, I was able to keep my son at the school he attended and graduated from, but having Oakwood High School as a backup was a relief for me.

My initial thoughts of moving and living in Oakwood did not come without fear. Historically, Oakwood was not considered a very diverse community and I have had family and friends that were pulled over numerous times when driving up or down Far Hills. I also remember hearing that the Oakwood community was not very welcoming to people of color. These stories frightened me because I am a woman of color with a son of color, so I often times worried about him and what he was going to experience. But I did not encounter those things and am reading more and more about Oakwood's commitment to become more inclusive and have seen diversity changes throughout.

That being said, I cannot remember a day when I did not feel a sigh of relief or release as I crossed over to Oakwood on my drive home from work. Oakwood was my sanctuary for the time period we lived there, and I have often times thought about moving back. – Antoinette Hampton
