Attached is a list of teachers who have been submitted by their school district for state funding for the 2014–15 National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS) salary bonus in the July 2015 apportionment payment. Teacher bonus amounts of $6,008.24 include $5,090 for the employee's salary bonus and $918.24 (18.04%) for the employer's portion of mandatory benefits. For teachers assigned to challenging high-poverty schools, bonus amounts may be up to $11,910.24 ($6,008.24 base bonus + $5,902 challenging high-poverty schools bonus), i.e., $10,090 for the employee's salary bonus ($5,090 plus an additional $5,000 for the challenging high-poverty schools bonus) and $1,820.24 (18.04%) for the employer's portion of mandatory benefits), or a smaller, pro-rated amount if the teacher is assigned less than 1.0 FTE to challenging high-poverty schools.

First-year, national board certified teachers (NBCTs) who attain their initial certificate from the NBPTS during the 2014–15 school year receive $3,604.94, which is 60% of the annual bonus of $5,090 ($3,054) and employer's portion of mandatory benefits of $918.24 ($550.94), to reflect the portion of the instructional school year they are certified. For first-year teachers assigned to challenging high-poverty schools, bonus amounts may be up to $7,146.14 (60% of the $6,008.24 base bonus + $5,902 challenging high-poverty school bonus) i.e., $6,054 for the employee's salary bonus and $1,092.14 (18.04%) for the employer's portion of mandatory benefits, or a smaller, pro-rated amount if the first-year, newly-certified teacher is assigned less than 1.0 FTE to challenging high-poverty schools.

Please make sure that any new hires to your school district this year, who have current certification by the NBPTS and are serving in an eligible instructional assignment, have been included in this list. Also, please don't request the bonus for national board certified teachers who were no longer employed by your school district during the 2014–15 school year.

Many teachers who were newly-certified in November 2014 by the NBPTS are required to re-pay $2,000 for a loan. This amount is shown as a $2,000 reduction in salary bonus; however, the employing school district still receives the full amount for the employer's portion of mandatory benefits (18.04%). This $2,000 of the bonus is still subject to the same taxes as any other employee compensation, even if the employee does not receive this amount directly. Below is additional guidance on this $2,000 re-payment:

- The Legislature has funded the National Board Conditional Loan program. This program covers $2,000 of the $2,500 application fee for candidates interested in pursuing their candidacy alongside colleagues with mentoring from NBPTS-certified teachers and other facilitators trained by the initiative.

- For those first-year NBCTs that received the upfront conditional loan, OSPI will take out $2,000 from their first bonus check upon certification, prior to providing the bonus to the employing district.
- The district shall pay the bonus(es) to the employee in a lump sum amount on a supplemental contract pursuant to RCW 28A.400.200. The actual lump sum payment to teachers will be less than the full bonus amount as it is subject to personal payroll deductions for federal withholding tax, FICA, pension contributions, etc. The district is required to process deductions on the initial entire amount of the bonus regardless if an NBCT is repaying a conditional loan to the state.

Districts are required to make all NBPTS bonus payments for school year 2014–15 to eligible teachers no later than August 31, 2015.

For further details, see your district's July 2015 apportionment report, Report 1197, account 4158, and OSPI bulletin B067-14 at <http://www.k12.wa.us/BulletinsMemos/bulletins2014.aspx>. Eligibility criteria for the NBPTS bonus may be found in Washington Administrative Code 392-140-972 and -973 at <http://app.leg.wa.gov/WAC/default.aspx?cite=392-140-972>. Please forward this information to district business and human resource officials as needed.
