Employee Discipline and Misconduct Investigations

Join us for a full-day session to cover the basics of employee discipline and misconduct investigations. This workshop offers a practical course with discussion from sample cases, hypothetical and real-life examples.

- Employee discipline, ranging from letters of direction to termination.
- Determining the appropriate level of employee discipline.
- Discipline that sticks.
- Handling an employee discipline case from start, to finish.
- Practical tips and guidance for conducting employee investigations.
- Knowing when to place an employee on administrative leave.
- Defining Weingarten rights.
- Conducting Loudermill hearings.
- Preparing for termination hearings.
- Principals of just cause.

AND MUCH MORE!

Mercer Island has provided Principals with supplemental contracts commensurate with the size of their project and the additional organizational work involved. They are ranging from $1500 for a project adding 3 classrooms and remodeling 3 more with some reconfiguration to $6000 for a larger project that involves demolition of 1/3 of campus and a rebuild of a Phase 1 of 2 replacement. All projects are overseen and managed from the district office, this compensation is specifically for the impact and additional workload involved with managing the impact while running the school.

Sarah Nelson from Tumwater School District is interested in responses about how other districts support and/or compensate principals whose schools are undergoing construction and remodel.

We hope you are having a successful school year.

As we head into a critical season for collective bargaining in the spring of 2015, we wanted to make sure you were aware of a new training opportunity for school district bargaining teams. In partnership with the Washington School Personnel Association, our attorneys have developed a 1-day workshop entitled "21st Century Bargaining Skills." This six hour workshop will provide a good foundation for school administrators who may be sitting on a management bargaining team for the first time, as well as new tools for experienced bargainers to add to their toolbox of successful bargaining skills. We encourage you to consider sending your entire bargaining team.

The workshop will be held on January 23 at the Southcenter Doubletree in Tukwila. A flyer describing the workshop is attached, and registration is available at www.wspa.net.

As always, if you have any questions, please feel free to call or e-mail any of our attorneys for more information.

Infographics

Objective

By the end of this unit of instruction, you will be able to will be able to recognize and produce basic infographics. Make your Science Fair presentation easy to understand and enjoyable to read. Learn how to extract key data from articles online and produce compelling layouts and visual elements.

What is an Infographic?

Infographics visually represent data, information, knowledge, and arguments. Infographics tell complex stories by combining a variety of charts, graphs, timelines, and other tools known as assets. They exploit elements of design to synthesize large amounts of information, to point to connections and patterns, using visual strategies that make it easy for the viewer to digest and understand.

As the saying goes, "a picture is worth a thousand words" - often more - but only when the story is best told graphically rather than verbally and the picture is well designed. You could stare at a table of numbers all day and never see what would be immediately obvious when looking at a good picture of those same numbers. - Stephen Few http://www.interaction-design.org/encyclopedia/data_visualization_for_human_perception.html

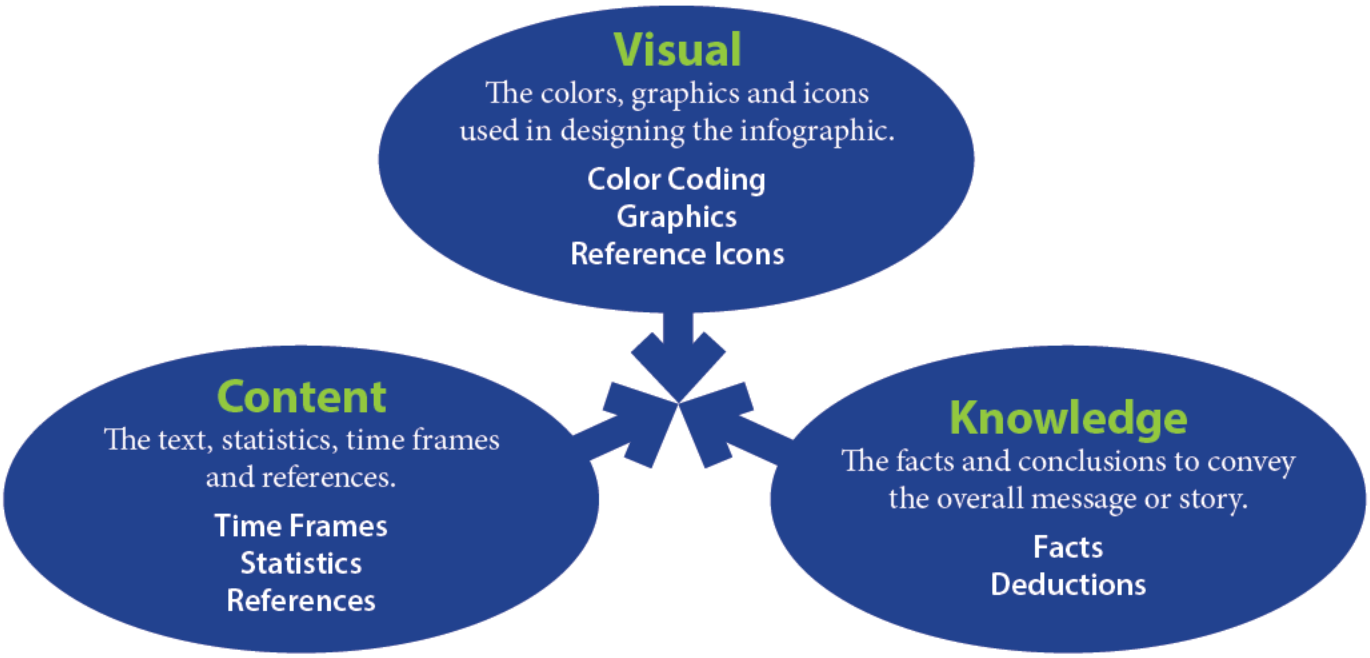
Good information design is the best way to navigate information glut — and it may just change the way we see the world.

—David McCandless, TED talk, The Beauty of Data Visualization.

With so much available data, attention spans are short. Presenting key concepts in a compelling way is an art.

There are three parts of an Infographic:



Assignment

Your task is to design an infographic that explains a global issue. Your infographic should present a thesis supported by clear, carefully-researched evidence presented graphically. You will combine several statistical graphs and maybe some data maps in a composition. Approach an infographic as you would, any other form of design. Put together a skeleton of words and arrows, grouping relevant data together and visualizing the flow of information using flowcharts.

How do I go about this project?

1. Research! Read background information. Locate and analyze relevant data.
   Start with a Google Search on your topic. Read EVERYTHING - do not rely on one source for your data. Make certain that your sources are accurate.

   It goes without saying that all infographics must be thoroughly researched and the data presented must be backed up by established facts. While doing that, you will inevitably end up with piles of data. Sifting through that you must condense and decide what data is the most relevant and how you are going to present it. The ratio of data to the graphics works best if it is 1:1.

   Another extremely important point to remember is demographics. Who is going to be using your infographic? Are they regular office going people who are used to staring at suburban train line infographics or tourists from a non-English speaking country or 10 year old impressionable kids who are being taught to recognize bullying and raise a voice against it. Depending on the demographics, your infographics will accordingly reflect colors, icons, knowledge and complexity.

2. Search to see how others have represented similar data.
   Do NOT copy their layouts, but improve on them!

3. Plan the most important elements/assets. Sketch out your "story."
   Thumbnail sketches help us "think" on paper. You MUST organize your strategy BEFORE you start producing graphics on the computer. Once you have some hard data to work from, you need to begin to consider the design. Infographics often work best when the graphics reflect the subject of the data, so try and let the data inform and drive the design. In this part of the design process as many avenues as possible need to be explored.

4. Decide how best to visualize the meaning of those elements.
   Determine what kind of graph will best represent each of the data groups that you will use in your infographic. Investigate different visual approaches by studying the Periodic Table of Visualization Methods: http://www.visual-literacy.org/periodic_table/periodic_table.html

5. Develop a thesis/argument.
   You need to "boil-down" your topic to one sentence that clearly defines what you are trying to show with your infographics.

6. Keep it simple! Keep it clear! Graphics
   Remove everything that does not contribute to your thesis. Extraneous borders & decorations are confusing.

   There are two kinds of graphics in an infographic. They are theme graphics and reference graphics.

   Theme graphic is the defining visual of the design and is usually always included in the infographic, except when the infographic is more statistic based. Choosing the right theme graphic will tell you reader at a glance what knowledge you wish to share.

Reference graphics are not mandatory in the design. They are usually icons used as visual pointers to avoid cluttering up the design when a lot of content needs to be represented. They are brilliantly capable of making numerous references using the same instance. Sometimes words aren't even necessary if powerful reference icons are used, a practice more and more designers are using in a bid to make their infographics as word-free as possible.

7. Carefully select a color scheme.
   A color scheme is very important to convey a wide array of messages while keeping the reader confined inside the infographic. With huge and complex infographics, readers will become quickly confused and their perceptions will be scattered all over the place if they don't have colors tying down their thoughts visually. You can have 2, 3 or 10 colors but assigning them before you begin designing will be the most important thing you do.

8. Stuck for ideas? Select Kuler in the extensions menu of InDesign & Illustrator, or go to: https://kuler.adobe.com/

9. Carefully select your font.
   Do not use display fonts that distract and detract from your message.

10. Create the individual elements and bring them together into a cohesive layout.
    Use Adobe InDesign or Illustrator for your layout. Any graphic elements created in Photoshop must have enough resolution (use 300ppi resolution) so that there is no degradation of quality if the image is scaled. In other words, because your Photoshop work will be pixel-based (Raster), make the image size bigger than you think you will need.

    All the different sections should all feel part of the same theme. The layout must have good spatial organization, structure of elements, and informative value. Continue the refining process and gain feedback from as many people as possible. You should begin to see the finished product coming into shape.

    Remember: main point on top, secondary point next, and supporting details at bottom.

11. Organization of the Elements: L.A.T.C.H.

12. Make sure your conclusion is evident.
    Ask a colleague (who is not involved with this project) to tell you what message they get from viewing your infographic.

13. Reference your sources.
    Always. Always. No exceptions. Use 7 point type
    from: http://tmblr.co/Zc5ibxZD3xQQ
    One trend I'm noticing more and more are data-laden graphics with no source indicated for the information included.
    THIS IS WRONG. VERY WRONG.
    If you use someone's information, you need to cite it. Properly. Full stop, people.
    If you don't, it's called plagiarism, aka cheating, lying and general ne'er-do-well-ing.
    You know, you don't cite something just to give credit to the source for actually doing the research; it also gives your info-graphic credibility, and that's a good thing. There's really no excuse not to do it.
    So, let's all agree that we're going to stop creating info-graphics without proper citation!

14. Post your image

taken in part from: http://www.queness.com/post/9942/how-to-design-your-own-infographics and http://spyrestudios.com/the-anatomy-of-an-infographic-5-steps-to-create-a-powerful-visual/

Universal Principles of Design

from: Universal Principles of Design by Lidwell, Holden, Butler. Rockport Press, 2003 & The 7 essentials of Graphic Design by Allison Goodman, 2001, HOW Design Books, Cincinnati, OH

TYPOGRAPHY: The artful representation of words is an art, and cannot be left solely to the computer to accomplish. Pay attention to the details of how a designers handle type.
COLOR: used in design to attract attention, group elements, indicate meaning, and enhance aesthetics.
CONSISTENCY: the usability of a system is improved when similar parts are expressed in similar ways
HIERARCHY: Organization is the simplest structure for visualizing and understanding complexity.
CHUNKING: a technique of combining many units of information into a limited number of units or chunks, so that the information is easier to process and remember.
ALIGNMENT: The placement of element such that edges line up along common rows or columns, or their bodies along a common center.
PROXIMITY: Elements that are close together are perceived to be more related than elements that are farther apart.
IMAGES: Pictures have more immediate impact than words.

L.A.T.C.H.: The Five Methods of Organization Information/Data

Location

Location is the natural form to choose when you are trying to examine and compare information that comes from diverse sources or locales. If you were examining an industry, for example, you might want to know how it is distributed around the world. Doctors use the different locations in the body as groupings to study medicine. (In China, doctors use mannequins in their offices so that patients can point to the particular location of their pain or problem.)

Alphabet

This method lends itself to organizing extraordinarily large bodies of information, such as words in a dictionary or names in a telephone directory. As most of us have already memorized the twenty-six letters of the alphabet, the organization of information by alphabet works when the audience or readership encompasses a broad spectrum of society that might not understand classification by another form such as category or location.

Time

Time works best as an organizing principle for events that happen over fixed durations, such as conventions. Time has also been used creatively to organize a place, such as in the Day in the Life book series. It works with exhibitions, museums, and histories, be they of countries or companies. The designer Charles Eames created an exhibit on Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin that was done as a timeline, where the viewers could see who was doing what, when. Time is an easily understandable framework from which changes can be observed and comparisons made.

Category

Category pertains to the organization of goods. Retail stores are usually organized in this way by different types of merchandise, e.g. kitchenware in one department, clothing in another. Category can mean different models, different types, or even different questions to be answered, such as in a brochure that is divided into questions about a company. This mode lends itself well to organizing items of similar importance. Category is well reinforced by color as opposed to numbers, which have inherent value.

Hierarchy

This mode organizes items by magnitude from small to large, least expensive to most expensive, by order of importance, etc. It is the mode to use when you want to assign value or weight to the information, or when you want to use it to study something like an industry or company. Which department had the highest rate of absenteeism? Which had the least? What is the smallest company engaged in a certain business? What is the largest? Unlike category, magnitude can be illustrated with numbers or units.

Different ways to make your infographic more appealing:

1. Make use of as many colors that you have in the color wheel
2. Use different types of fonts because by using multiple fonts, even a boring sentence can also draw user attention
3. Don't write long paragraphs, use short and precise sentences
4. Copy simple charts available on the internet and paste it in the infograph
5. Don't waste time by checking the facts because most of the facts present in websites will be correct.
6. You can extend the infograph by placing content instead of statistics
7. Structure the infograph using nice styles
8. Don't worry about the proof reading, mistakes in infographics are neglected by the readers
9. Use other infographics as resource to create a new infograph.

Assignment Topic:

Stray Dogs/Feral Dogs/Wild Dogs

It is us to you what information you feature in your infographic. There are many different points of view. Ideas:

- Global Map showing numbers of stray dogs per country
- Number of dogs per country vs. number of stray dogs
- Disease caused by stray dogs
- The difference between stray, feral, and wild dogs
- Methods used to solve the global stray dog problem
- Dog breeds per country.
- Number of veterinarians per country
- Number of dog attacks per country during a period of time

> Information visualization is only as good as its imput. Get the story or the data right first, good solid information, and only then do you have the makings of a good visualization or infographic. It follows then, that we acquire more data and more accurate data, we will be able to process it more eloquently into the information visualizations and infographics of tomorrow.

Components	Exceeds Expectations	Meets Expectations	Needs More Work
Topic	The topic of the infographic is specific in nature and is intended to inform or convince the viewer.	The topic of the infographic may be a bit too broad to allow the viewer to understand the main points.	The topic of the infographic is hard to ascertain and needs to be made more specific.
Type of Infographic	The type of infographic chosen (timeline, informational, etc.) highly supports the content being presented.	The type of infographic chosen represents the content being chosen but another type may lead to more clarity for the viewer.	The type of infographic chosen does not convey the information well or support the content being presented..
Objects	The objects included in the infographic are repeated to support various data points and to make it easier for the viewer to understand the infographic.	Some objects included in the infographic are repeated but the infographic did not seem to include enough repeated elements to make it understandable.	Too many different types of objects are used in the infographic and that makes it hard for the viewer to understand the content.
Data Visualizations	The data visualization formats chosen make the data presented easy for the viewer to understand the information. Selection of images and text demonstrates clear understanding of audience & purpose. High quality graphics created or modified from stock art.	The data visualization formats chosen showcase the data, but some may make it difficult for the viewer to understand the points. Images used are mismatch and add to visual confusion. Graphics are low quality clip art.	Other data visualization formats should be chosen to best showcase the data presentation for the viewer. Images are not consistent, sized poorly. Low-quality clip art used. Extraneous graphic elements.
Fonts	The infographic includes an appropriate font to both complement the content and make the text readable. Title & headings easy to distinguish from other text. Appropriate font sizes.	The infographic includes multiple fonts and/or the fonts do not seem related to the infographics topic.	The font(s) used in the infographic make the text almost unreadable.
Colors	The color choices enhance the visibility of the infographic. Different saturations of the same color are used wisely.	The color choices are fine, but too many colors may have been used.	The color choices for the infographic are not visually pleasing and detract from the infographic.
Layout	The principles of design: consistency, hierarchy, chunking, alignment, and proximity where used to create a pleasing composition that guides the viewer's eyes quickly and easily through the information. No pixelation on images.	Alignment issues. Some images are pixelated. Images obviously downloaded from internet, bad resolution, no consistentcy.	Elements are thrown on the page. Pixelation. No original artwork done.
Information Organization	The infographic uses one of the LATCH (location, alphabetical, timeline, category, or hierarchy) information organization formats to allow the viewer to understand the information in the infographic.	The infographic uses some components of the LATCH information organization formats, but the cohesiveness of the information presentation is lacking.	No information organization choice is present in the infographic. Disregard for copyright laws.
Citations	Full bibliographic citations for all sources used are included. Respect for Intellectual property.	The URL of sources used are included. Copyright laws broken?	No citations to sources used are included.
Content	Research demonstrates a complete understanding of the topic. Extends audience vocabulary by defining or illustrating words that might be new to most of the audience.	Information is gathered together, but no conclusion can be reached about the facts. No jargon used.	Haphazard collection of data.
Mechanics	Deadline met. Correct file format: .PDF	One day late on turn-in Incorrect file format	More than one day late. Incorrect file format

What is an Infographic?

Infographics visually represent data, information, knowledge, and arguments. Infographics tell complex stories by combining a variety of charts, graphs, timelines, and other tools known as assets. They exploit elements of design to synthesize large amounts of information, to point to connections and patterns, using visual strategies that make it easy for the viewer to digest and understand.

As the saying goes, "a picture is worth a thousand words" - often more - but only when the story is best told graphically rather than verbally and the picture is well designed. You could stare at a table of numbers all day and never see what would be immediately obvious when looking at a good picture of those same numbers. - Stephen Few

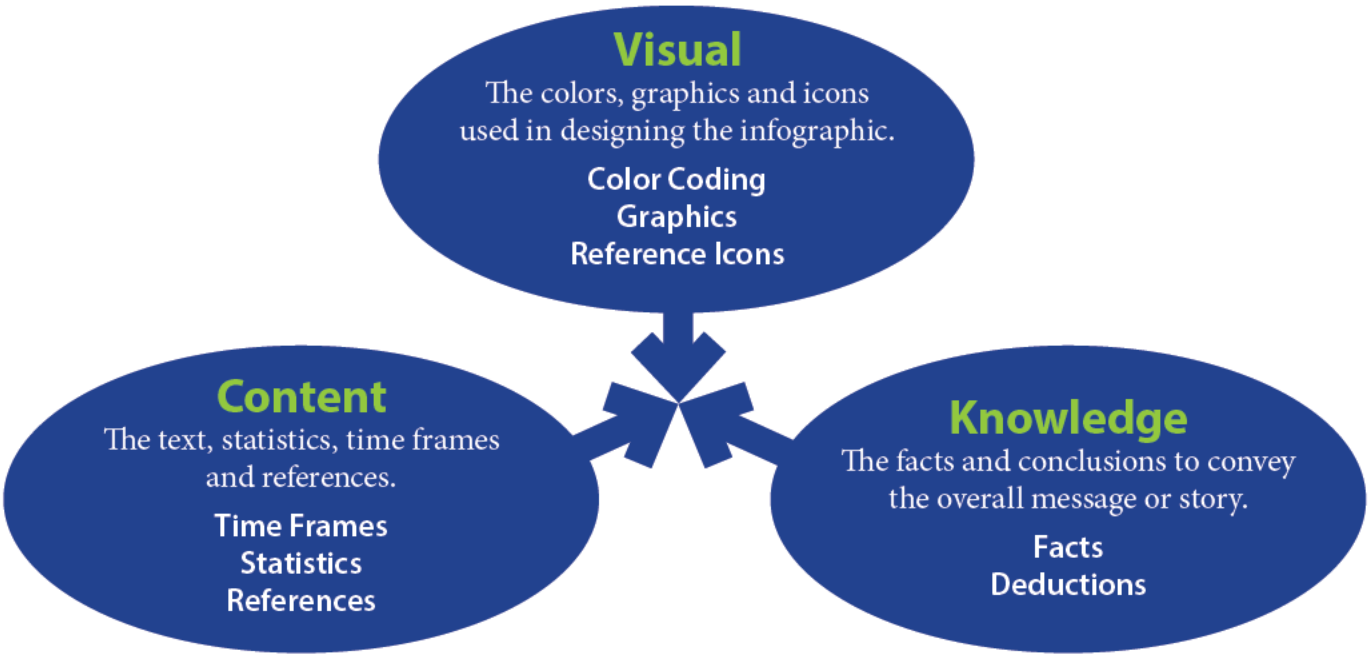
Good information design is the best way to navigate information glut — and it may just change the way we see the world.

—David McCandless, TED talk, The Beauty of Data Visualization.

With so much available data, attention spans are short. Presenting key concepts in a compelling way is an art.

There are three parts of an Infographic:



Assignment

Your task is to design an infographic that explains a global issue. Your infographic should present a thesis supported by clear, carefully-researched evidence presented graphically. You will combine several statistical graphs and maybe some data maps in a composition. Approach an infographic as you would, any other form of design. Put together a skeleton of words and arrows, grouping relevant data together and visualizing the flow of information using flowcharts.

How do I go about this project?

1. Research! Read background information. Locate and analyze relevant data.
   Start with a Google Search on your topic. Read EVERYTHING - do not rely on one source for your data. Make certain that your sources are accurate.

   It goes without saying that all infographics must be thoroughly researched and the data presented must be backed up by established facts. While doing that, you will inevitably end up with piles of data. Sifting through that you must condense and decide what data is the most relevant and how you are going to present it. The ratio of data to the graphics works best if it is 1:1.

   Another extremely important point to remember is demographics. Who is going to be using your infographic? Are they regular office going people who are used to staring at suburban train line infographics or tourists from a non-English speaking country or 10 year old impressionable kids who are being taught to recognize bullying and raise a voice against it. Depending on the demographics, your infographics will accordingly reflect colors, icons, knowledge and complexity.

2. Search to see how others have represented similar data.
   Do NOT copy their layouts, but improve on them!

3. Plan the most important elements/assets. Sketch out your "story."
   Thumbnail sketches help us "think" on paper. You MUST organize your strategy BEFORE you start producing graphics on the computer. Once you have some hard data to work from, you need to begin to consider the design. Infographics often work best when the graphics reflect the subject of the data, so try and let the data inform and drive the design. In this part of the design process as many avenues as possible need to be explored.

4. Decide how best to visualize the meaning of those elements.
   Determine what kind of graph will best represent each of the data groups that you will use in your infographic. Investigate different visual approaches by studying the Periodic Table of Visualization Methods: http://www.visual-literacy.org/periodic_table/periodic_table.html

5. Develop a thesis/argument.
   You need to "boil-down" your topic to one sentence that clearly defines what you are trying to show with your infographics.

6. Keep it simple! Keep it clear! Graphics
   Remove everything that does not contribute to your thesis. Extraneous borders & decorations are confusing.

   There are two kinds of graphics in an infographic. They are theme graphics and reference graphics.

   Theme graphic is the defining visual of the design and is usually always included in the infographic, except when the infographic is more statistic based. Choosing the right theme graphic will tell you reader at a glance what knowledge you wish to share.

Reference graphics are not mandatory in the design. They are usually icons used as visual pointers to avoid cluttering up the design when a lot of content needs to be represented. They are brilliantly capable of making numerous references using the same instance. Sometimes words aren't even necessary if powerful reference icons are used, a practice more and more designers are using in a bid to make their infographics as word-free as possible.

7. Carefully select a color scheme.
   A color scheme is very important to convey a wide array of messages while keeping the reader confined inside the infographic. With huge and complex infographics, readers will become quickly confused and their perceptions will be scattered all over the place if they don't have colors tying down their thoughts visually. You can have 2, 3 or 10 colors but assigning them before you begin designing will be the most important thing you do.

8. Stuck for ideas? Select Kuler in the extensions menu of InDesign & Illustrator, or go to: https://kuler.adobe.com/

9. Carefully select your font.
   Do not use display fonts that distract and detract from your message.

10. Create the individual elements and bring them together into a cohesive layout.
    Use Adobe InDesign or Illustrator for your layout. Any graphic elements created in Photoshop must have enough resolution (use 300ppi resolution) so that there is no degradation of quality if the image is scaled. In other words, because your Photoshop work will be pixel-based (Raster), make the image size bigger than you think you will need.

    All the different sections should all feel part of the same theme. The layout must have good spatial organization, structure of elements, and informative value. Continue the refining process and gain feedback from as many people as possible. You should begin to see the finished product coming into shape.

    Remember: main point on top, secondary point next, and supporting details at bottom.

11. Organization of the Elements: L.A.T.C.H.

12. Make sure your conclusion is evident.
    Ask a colleague (who is not involved with this project) to tell you what message they get from viewing your infographic.

13. Reference your sources.
    Always. Always. No exceptions. Use 7 point type
    from: http://tmblr.co/Zc5ibxZD3xQQ
    One trend I'm noticing more and more are data-laden graphics with no source indicated for the information included.
    THIS IS WRONG. VERY WRONG.
    If you use someone's information, you need to cite it. Properly. Full stop, people.
    If you don't, it's called plagiarism, aka cheating, lying and general ne'er-do-well-ing.
    You know, you don't cite something just to give credit to the source for actually doing the research; it also gives your info-graphic credibility, and that's a good thing. There's really no excuse not to do it.
    So, let's all agree that we're going to stop creating info-graphics without proper citation!

14. Post your image

Universal Principles of Design

from: Universal Principles of Design by Lidwell, Holden, Butler. Rockport Press, 2003 & The 7 essentials of Graphic Design by Allison Goodman, 2001, HOW Design Books, Cincinnati, OH

TYPOGRAPHY: The artful representation of words is an art, and cannot be left solely to the computer to accomplish. Pay attention to the details of how a designers handle type.
COLOR: used in design to attract attention, group elements, indicate meaning, and enhance aesthetics.
CONSISTENCY: the usability of a system is improved when similar parts are expressed in similar ways
HIERARCHY: Organization is the simplest structure for visualizing and understanding complexity.
CHUNKING: a technique of combining many units of information into a limited number of units or chunks, so that the information is easier to process and remember.
ALIGNMENT: The placement of element such that edges line up along common rows or columns, or their bodies along a common center.
PROXIMITY: Elements that are close together are perceived to be more related than elements that are farther apart.
IMAGES: Pictures have more immediate impact than words.

L.A.T.C.H.: The Five Methods of Organization Information/Data

Location

Location is the natural form to choose when you are trying to examine and compare information that comes from diverse sources or locales. If you were examining an industry, for example, you might want to know how it is distributed around the world. Doctors use the different locations in the body as groupings to study medicine. (In China, doctors use mannequins in their offices so that patients can point to the particular location of their pain or problem.)

Alphabet

This method lends itself to organizing extraordinarily large bodies of information, such as words in a dictionary or names in a telephone directory. As most of us have already memorized the twenty-six letters of the alphabet, the organization of information by alphabet works when the audience or readership encompasses a broad spectrum of society that might not understand classification by another form such as category or location.

Time

Time works best as an organizing principle for events that happen over fixed durations, such as conventions. Time has also been used creatively to organize a place, such as in the Day in the Life book series. It works with exhibitions, museums, and histories, be they of countries or companies. The designer Charles Eames created an exhibit on Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin that was done as a timeline, where the viewers could see who was doing what, when. Time is an easily understandable framework from which changes can be observed and comparisons made.

Category

Category pertains to the organization of goods. Retail stores are usually organized in this way by different types of merchandise, e.g. kitchenware in one department, clothing in another. Category can mean different models, different types, or even different questions to be answered, such as in a brochure that is divided into questions about a company. This mode lends itself well to organizing items of similar importance. Category is well reinforced by color as opposed to numbers, which have inherent value.

Hierarchy

This mode organizes items by magnitude from small to large, least expensive to most expensive, by order of importance, etc. It is the mode to use when you want to assign value or weight to the information, or when you want to use it to study something like an industry or company. Which department had the highest rate of absenteeism? Which had the least? What is the smallest company engaged in a certain business? What is the largest? Unlike category, magnitude can be illustrated with numbers or units.

Different ways to make your infographic more appealing:

1. Make use of as many colors that you have in the color wheel
2. Use different types of fonts because by using multiple fonts, even a boring sentence can also draw user attention
3. Don't write long paragraphs, use short and precise sentences
4. Copy simple charts available on the internet and paste it in the infograph
5. Don't waste time by checking the facts because most of the facts present in websites will be correct.
6. You can extend the infograph by placing content instead of statistics
7. Structure the infograph using nice styles
8. Don't worry about the proof reading, mistakes in infographics are neglected by the readers
9. Use other infographics as resource to create a new infograph.

Assignment Topic:

Stray Dogs/Feral Dogs/Wild Dogs

It is us to you what information you feature in your infographic. There are many different points of view. Ideas:

- Global Map showing numbers of stray dogs per country
- Number of dogs per country vs. number of stray dogs
- Disease caused by stray dogs
- The difference between stray, feral, and wild dogs
- Methods used to solve the global stray dog problem
- Dog breeds per country.
- Number of veterinarians per country
- Number of dog attacks per country during a period of time

> Information visualization is only as good as its imput. Get the story or the data right first, good solid information, and only then do you have the makings of a good visualization or infographic. It follows then, that we acquire more data and more accurate data, we will be able to process it more eloquently into the information visualizations and infographics of tomorrow.

Components	Exceeds Expectations	Meets Expectations	Needs More Work
Topic	The topic of the infographic is specific in nature and is intended to inform or convince the viewer.	The topic of the infographic may be a bit too broad to allow the viewer to understand the main points.	The topic of the infographic is hard to ascertain and needs to be made more specific.
Type of Infographic	The type of infographic chosen (timeline, informational, etc.) highly supports the content being presented.	The type of infographic chosen represents the content being chosen but another type may lead to more clarity for the viewer.	The type of infographic chosen does not convey the information well or support the content being presented..
Objects	The objects included in the infographic are repeated to support various data points and to make it easier for the viewer to understand the infographic.	Some objects included in the infographic are repeated but the infographic did not seem to include enough repeated elements to make it understandable.	Too many different types of objects are used in the infographic and that makes it hard for the viewer to understand the content.
Data Visualizations	The data visualization formats chosen make the data presented easy for the viewer to understand the information. Selection of images and text demonstrates clear understanding of audience & purpose. High quality graphics created or modified from stock art.	The data visualization formats chosen showcase the data, but some may make it difficult for the viewer to understand the points. Images used are mismatch and add to visual confusion. Graphics are low quality clip art.	Other data visualization formats should be chosen to best showcase the data presentation for the viewer. Images are not consistent, sized poorly. Low-quality clip art used. Extraneous graphic elements.
Fonts	The infographic includes an appropriate font to both complement the content and make the text readable. Title & headings easy to distinguish from other text. Appropriate font sizes.	The infographic includes multiple fonts and/or the fonts do not seem related to the infographics topic.	The font(s) used in the infographic make the text almost unreadable.
Colors	The color choices enhance the visibility of the infographic. Different saturations of the same color are used wisely.	The color choices are fine, but too many colors may have been used.	The color choices for the infographic are not visually pleasing and detract from the infographic.
Layout	The principles of design: consistency, hierarchy, chunking, alignment, and proximity where used to create a pleasing composition that guides the viewer's eyes quickly and easily through the information. No pixelation on images.	Alignment issues. Some images are pixelated. Images obviously downloaded from internet, bad resolution, no consistentcy.	Elements are thrown on the page. Pixelation. No original artwork done.
Information Organization	The infographic uses one of the LATCH (location, alphabetical, timeline, category, or hierarchy) information organization formats to allow the viewer to understand the information in the infographic.	The infographic uses some components of the LATCH information organization formats, but the cohesiveness of the information presentation is lacking.	No information organization choice is present in the infographic. Disregard for copyright laws.
Citations	Full bibliographic citations for all sources used are included. Respect for Intellectual property.	The URL of sources used are included. Copyright laws broken?	No citations to sources used are included.
Content	Research demonstrates a complete understanding of the topic. Extends audience vocabulary by defining or illustrating words that might be new to most of the audience.	Information is gathered together, but no conclusion can be reached about the facts. No jargon used.	Haphazard collection of data.
Mechanics	Deadline met. Correct file format: .PDF	One day late on turn-in Incorrect file format	More than one day late. Incorrect file format

Parking Passes Tacoma 2015.pdf
Importance: High

Hello,

Please see the information below with some of the details of the job fair and the parking passes attached. Kathy and I are leaving Seattle at 7:30 in order to have the booth set up by 9:00. Jennifer and Vicki do not need to arrive until 9:00 or soon after. We are in booth 155, literally right in the middle of the whole event. It ends at 3:00 PM. Kathy and I will be there until the end. If Vicki and/or Jennifer could stay for a minimum of 3 hours, it would be greatly appreciated.

Be prepared to tell potential candidates about the progressive and innovative initiatives on Mercer Island, about the strong parental support – high expectations/high support, about working in a small community focused on education while living in a large metropolitan area, about the reality of the commute – but it not being too bad, about the open positions including the multiple Special Education positions, and about the salaries. The materials will help you to share, but be thinking about those things.

Please let me know if you have any questions and thank you for coming.

Subject: Washington Educator Career Fair Tacoma - Your Registration information
Importance: High

Greetings Registrants:

Our Washington Educator Career Fair at the Tacoma dome on April 23rd is quickly approaching. Here are some important items to send with your recruiters to the fair:

1. Internet Order Form – If you would like DSL availability at your booth you must order directly through the Tacoma Dome no later than 7 days prior to the event. That Phone/Internet order form is attached.

2. Parking Passes – Attached for you to print are the parking passes for the F and G lots only. This is not the lot adjacent to the Expo Hall, but rather these lots are located behind the Tacoma Dome and can be accessed off of Wiley Avenue. Your district is allowed 2 parking passes per booth purchased.

3. Recruiter Handbook – see attached with important information including loading and unloading info. You can begin unloading at 7:30 a.m. on the day of the event. The fair hours are 9:00-3:00.

4. Pemco and School Employees Credit union will provide refreshments.

5. Your booth assignments are not available at this time. I am awaiting the floor plan from the Tacoma Dome. Once I receive that I will assign booths and will send you a copy.

Thank you,

Chris Callaham

Career Fair Booth Hours

Please note the fair hours. These hours have been established by WSPA in an effort to meet the needs of the candidates as well as participating districts and colleges.

9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. – Spokane

9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. – Tacoma

- We stress the importance of having a representative at your space during those hours as a courtesy to the candidates, some of whom have traveled considerable distances and cannot arrive until near the end of the day.

- Check your loading and unloading instructions for times available for set up of your booth.

- Complimentary coffee and refreshments will be available provided by PEMCO and School Employees Credit Union.

- Please keep your booth, display, and staff intact and functioning until the closing time.

- Insurance requirements at both the Spokane Convention Center and The Tacoma Dome PRECLUDE the use of moving carts and pull carts during the stated operating hours of the Fair and thus Districts that choose to depart the venue floors prior to the stated closing time will need to be prepared to hand carry their displays and materials from the venue.

REGISTRATION INFORMATION

Facilities, Signs, Displays and Materials: Each single booth will be provided with a curtained 9 or 10x10 booth, an eight foot linen draped table, two chairs and a sign with your district's name. Standard 5 amp electrical is also included.

- For more tables, chairs and other items that may be needed, please refer to the Event Coordinator section of this booklet.

- Posters, pictures and other display materials may be placed on the table, on a stand provided by your school, or they may be attached to the backdrop within the confines of your booth. Since we are anticipating several hundred candidates at each location, please plan to bring an adequate supply of handouts.

- Districts planning to mail materials to the fair locations in advance of the events should contact the Event Coordinator whose information is contained in the booklet.

Refreshments

PEMCO Financial Services and the School Employees Credit Union of Washington have annually provided free refreshments for all those attending our Career Fairs. Please take a moment to stop and thank the PEMCO and School Employees Credit Union representatives for this service.

Suggestions For Career Fair School Districts, ESDs, and Private Schools

- Analyze district teacher staffing needs – definite vacancies, possible vacancies, areas of shortage. Include all these in district postings at the Career Fair.
- Bring materials about the district, a map locating where the district is in the state; a few color photos of schools and surroundings; examples of curriculum guides – things that will help candidates know what it would be like to live and work in the district.
- Arrive on time and be prepared to meet and talk with candidates. Plan to stay until the Career Fair ends.
- Bring plenty of applications, brochures, and other handouts. The Career Fair is a golden opportunity to get those advertising materials into the hands of the people for whom they were intended.
- Include administrative vacancies in the postings to be displayed at the Career Fair.
- Keep a record of candidates who come to your booth. You might want to ask them to sign a sheet indicating name, area(s) of preparation, training institution, and other pertinent information.
- Be clear about what actions candidates need to take in order to follow up their interest in the district. Some may be just shopping around, but others will want to know what steps are to be taken next.

Hello,

Please see the information below with some of the details of the job fair and the parking passes attached. Kathy and I are leaving Seattle at 7:30 in order to have the booth set up by 9:00. Jennifer and Vicki do not need to arrive until 9:00 or soon after. We are in booth 155, literally right in the middle of the whole event. It ends at 3:00 PM. Kathy and I will be there until the end. If Vicki and/or Jennifer could stay for a minimum of 3 hours, it would be greatly appreciated.

Be prepared to tell potential candidates about the progressive and innovative initiatives on Mercer Island, about the strong parental support – high expectations/high support, about working in a small community focused on education while living in a large metropolitan area, about the reality of the commute – but it not being too bad, about the open positions including the multiple Special Education positions, and about the salaries. The materials will help you to share, but be thinking about those things.

Please let me know if you have any questions and thank you for coming.

Importance: High

Greetings Registrants:

Our Washington Educator Career Fair at the Tacoma dome on April 23rd is quickly approaching. Here are some important items to send with your recruiters to the fair:

1. Internet Order Form – If you would like DSL availability at your booth you must order directly through the Tacoma Dome no later than 7 days prior to the event. That Phone/Internet order form is attached.

2. Parking Passes – Attached for you to print are the parking passes for the F and G lots only. This is not the lot adjacent to the Expo Hall, but rather these lots are located behind the Tacoma Dome and can be accessed off of Wiley Avenue. Your district is allowed 2 parking passes per booth purchased.

3. Recruiter Handbook – see attached with important information including loading and unloading info. You can begin unloading at 7:30 a.m. on the day of the event. The fair hours are 9:00-3:00.

4. Pemco and School Employees Credit union will provide refreshments.

5. Your booth assignments are not available at this time. I am awaiting the floor plan from the Tacoma Dome. Once I receive that I will assign booths and will send you a copy.

Thank you,

Chris Callaham

Career Fair Booth Hours

Please note the fair hours. These hours have been established by WSPA in an effort to meet the needs of the candidates as well as participating districts and colleges.

9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. – Spokane

9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. – Tacoma

- We stress the importance of having a representative at your space during those hours as a courtesy to the candidates, some of whom have traveled considerable distances and cannot arrive until near the end of the day.

- Check your loading and unloading instructions for times available for set up of your booth.

- Complimentary coffee and refreshments will be available provided by PEMCO and School Employees Credit Union.

- Please keep your booth, display, and staff intact and functioning until the closing time.

- Insurance requirements at both the Spokane Convention Center and The Tacoma Dome PRECLUDE the use of moving carts and pull carts during the stated operating hours of the Fair and thus Districts that choose to depart the venue floors prior to the stated closing time will need to be prepared to hand carry their displays and materials from the venue.

REGISTRATION INFORMATION

Facilities, Signs, Displays and Materials: Each single booth will be provided with a curtained 9 or 10x10 booth, an eight foot linen draped table, two chairs and a sign with your district's name. Standard 5 amp electrical is also included.

- For more tables, chairs and other items that may be needed, please refer to the Event Coordinator section of this booklet.

- Posters, pictures and other display materials may be placed on the table, on a stand provided by your school, or they may be attached to the backdrop within the confines of your booth. Since we are anticipating several hundred candidates at each location, please plan to bring an adequate supply of handouts.

- Districts planning to mail materials to the fair locations in advance of the events should contact the Event Coordinator whose information is contained in the booklet.

Refreshments

PEMCO Financial Services and the School Employees Credit Union of Washington have annually provided free refreshments for all those attending our Career Fairs. Please take a moment to stop and thank the PEMCO and School Employees Credit Union representatives for this service.

Suggestions For Career Fair School Districts, ESDs, and Private Schools

- Analyze district teacher staffing needs – definite vacancies, possible vacancies, areas of shortage. Include all these in district postings at the Career Fair.
- Bring materials about the district, a map locating where the district is in the state; a few color photos of schools and surroundings; examples of curriculum guides – things that will help candidates know what it would be like to live and work in the district.
- Arrive on time and be prepared to meet and talk with candidates. Plan to stay until the Career Fair ends.
- Bring plenty of applications, brochures, and other handouts. The Career Fair is a golden opportunity to get those advertising materials into the hands of the people for whom they were intended.
- Include administrative vacancies in the postings to be displayed at the Career Fair.
- Keep a record of candidates who come to your booth. You might want to ask them to sign a sheet indicating name, area(s) of preparation, training institution, and other pertinent information.
- Be clear about what actions candidates need to take in order to follow up their interest in the district. Some may be just shopping around, but others will want to know what steps are to be taken next.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Student Data Breaches: Is Your District Prepared?

Unauthorized disclosure of confidential student data can occur, despite best efforts. Disclosure occurs when personally identifiable information (PII) from a student's education records is made available to a third party who does not have legal authority to access the information.

This can happen through a malicious attack by hackers gaining access to school computer systems or inadvertently when laptops, phones, or thumb drives are lost, stolen, or temporarily misplaced, employees negligently leave a password list in a publicly accessible location or misconfigure a security device, or through system failure such as the failure to backup security measures.

FERPA does not contain specific breach notification requirements, although it does require that school districts records each incident of data disclosure. 34 CFR §99.32.

Washington law requires any agency that owns or licenses computerized data that includes personal information to disclose any breach of the security of the system following discovery or notification of the breach to any individual whose unencrypted personal information may have been acquired by an unauthorized person. RCW 42.56.590.

Districts should consider putting policies and procedures in place to define "student data breach" and detail its efforts to prevent breaches as well as its response plan including notification of affected individuals and relevant agencies.

Additionally, direct student notification is advisable if the compromised data includes student SSNs and other identifying information that could lead to identity theft.

The Family Policy Compliance Office (FPCO), U.S. Department of Education has offered letters of guidance:

- Letter to Parades (2005)

Laptop containing student information was stolen and FPCA praised "quick and thorough" response to report incident to local police department and immediately notify students and assist in contacting credit bureaus.

- Letter to Fagan (2012)

School attorney reported to FPCA that flash drive containing students' education records went missing from a classroom. FPCO confirmed that it was an "inadvertent disclosure."

U.S. Department of Education Privacy Technical Assistance Center (PTAC) Data Breach Response Checklist

The items in this checklist (developed by PTAC) are the essential building blocks of an effective and efficient data breach response plan. The list below is not exhaustive and should be used only as a general guide, to be expanded and tailored to your district's unique operational and safety needs:

Before the Breach

✔ Establish and implement a written data breach response policy.

✔ Review your information system(s) and data and identify where PII and other sensitive information resides.

✔ Continuously monitor for PII and other sensitive data leakage and loss.

✔ Conduct frequent privacy and security awareness trainings as part of an on-going training and awareness program.

Responding to the Breach

✔ Validate the data breach

✔ Once a breach has been validated, immediately assign an incident manager to be responsible for the investigation

✔ Assemble incident response team

✔ Determine the scope and composition of the breach

✔ Determine the scope and composition of the breach

✔ Consider notifying FPCO and seeking technical assistance from PTAC

✔ Determine whether to notify the authorities/law enforcement (situation dependent)

✔ Decide how to investigate the data breach to ensure that the investigative evidence is appropriately handled and preserved

✔ Determine whether notification of affected individuals is appropriate and, if so, when and how to provide such notification

✔ Determine whether notification of affected individuals is appropriate and, if so, when and how to provide such notification
