NAVY UNIT COMMENDATION to

SEAL TEAM SIX

for service as set forth in the following

CITATION:

For exceptionally meritorious service in response to urgent and security-sensitive tasking directed by national command authorities from 1 November 1980 to 31 October 1982. When tasked with a unique and difficult command mission, members of SEAL Team SIX exhibited unusual motivation and intrepidity in meeting the challenge of gaining an immediate operational capability in heretofore unattempted Naval Special Warfare scenarios. The task of initially outfitting the unit and attaining this sophisticated operational capability within the timeframe directed was enormous in scope and extremely dangerous in content and required each individual to perform in exceptional fashion in order to obtain maximum operational proficiency. Through this concentrated effort, SEAL Team SIX established itself as a national as well as an international asset capable of responding to the direction of the national command authorities to any worldwide contingency. The truly impressive score of unprecedented accomplishments achieved by this unit added significantly to the tactical response latitude of the United States, and its achievements in the area of unique mission capabilities caused national as well as international attention to be focused on the United States Government as the one nation fully capable of responding swiftly to sensitive special operations. By their distinctive accomplishments, resourcefulness, team spirit, and steadfast devotion to duty, the officers and enlisted personnel of SEAL Team SIX reflected great credit upon themselves and upheld the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service.

"For professional achievement in the superior performance of his duties while serving as Operations Assistant for Training and Readiness on the staff of Commander, Naval Special Warfare Group TWO from June 1987 to April 1988. LT Rhodes demonstrated the highest level of professional acumen and extraordinary dedication to duty by systematically and meticulously drafting the Naval Special Warfare Group TWO Master Training Plan (MTP) published April 1988. LT Rhodes displayed foresight, drive and a sense of purpose typically seen in more senior officers. Through countless hours of painstaking analysis, LT Rhodes developed a thorough, logical and concise MTP. A major achievement for this group, the MTP is a lasting contribution to Naval Special Warfare readiness. LT Rhodes' reasoned, systematic approach and unfailing determination brought order to a fragmented program that had been only partially effective. This achievement reflects great credit upon LT Rhodes and is in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

for service as set forth in the following

CITATION:

For meritorious service while serving as the Principal Action Officer of the Precommissioning Unit and Executive Officer SEAL Team EIGHT from August 1987 through June 1989. Lieutenant Rhodes' outstanding performance during this period was directly responsible for the smooth establishment of SEAL Team EIGHT. Despite manpower shortages, budget constraints, and delays in delivery of equipment, his perseverance ensured the establishment of a sound organizational and administrative framework for the Team. He did a superb job of supervising the budget, monitoring SEAL Platoon training/deployment, and promulgating the myriad-of-administrative instructions that accompany the commissioning of a command. Lieutenant Rhodes' leadership, foresight, and boundless energy set the standard for others to emulate, providing a strong foundation for follow-on command development. By his professionalism, personal initiative, and loyal devotion to duty, Lieutenant Rhodes reflected credit upon himself and upheld the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service.

HISTORY OF THE SCHOOL

In 1909 the first Naval Postgraduate School, then called the Postgraduate Department of the U.S. Naval Academy, was established at Annapolis, Maryland. On June 9 that year ten students made up the class, three professors formed the faculty, and Marine Engineering was the only curriculum. When the first class graduated in 1911, Beekman Winthrop, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, said, "There will be some day a postgraduate course to call all the officers of the Navy together. This school is the beginning, and may be the one on which the Navy Department of the future may have to depend." As the school expanded over the next seven decades, his words have proved prophetic.

During World War I, the school closed, but classes resumed in 1919. Two years later the department was renamed the United States Naval Postgraduate School. In 1927, the General Line Course was established to acquaint junior line officers with modern developments within the Navy and broaden their professional knowledge for future command at sea.

World War II caused tremendous expansions of activities and a large increase in student enrollment. The school grew to meet the needs of the Navy, and more courses were added to the curriculum. After the 1945 armistice, the Navy began plans to move the school away from Annapolis and improve its professional status. Between 1945 and 1948, Congress established the school as a separate activity under its own superintendent, created the office of academic dean, granted the superintendent authority to award the bachelor's, master's and doctor's degrees and approved Monterey, California as the future home of the school.

After purchasing the former Hotel Del Monte and the surrounding acreage, the Navy officially established the school on the West Coast in 1951. Since moving to Monterey the postgraduate school has focused upon professional graduate education.

To meet this end, the Navy has made a strong commitment to quality postgraduate education of its officer corps — and for good reason. In addition to meeting the needs for near-term functional skills, this investment has served as a mechanism for sustaining the foundation of intellectual vigor in critical areas of expertise. Experience has proven that graduate level education is a fundamental constituent in the building of operational, technical, and managerial skills essential to maintaining institutional excellence in the face of dramatic change.

In support of national defense requirements, the Naval Postgraduate School graduates an average of 800 officers a year, and offers a variety of courses in science, management and engineering. In addition, its faculty members are dedicated to providing the highest quality education for their students — more than 1200 officers of all five U.S. services, 25 allied nations and U.S. government civilians.

Academic Dress

The cap and gown and colorful hood so prominent in commencement ceremonies resemble to some extent articles of dress worn by church and university dignitaries in the Middle Ages. The cap and gown indicate that the wearer is a member of a university or college. The hood shows the degree the wearer holds.

The gown for the bachelor's degree has pointed sleeves and is designed to be worn closed. The master's gown has closed sleeves, square at the end, the arms coming through a slit at the elbow; it may be worn open or closed. The doctor's gown has bell-shaped sleeves and may be worn open or closed. Down the front the doctor's gown has a facing of velvet and three bars of the same material on each sleeve. The facing and bars may be either black or the color distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. The cap is worn for all degrees; the doctor may wear a golden tassel.

Hoods are normally black with a colorful lining rolled outward. Bachelor's hoods are three feet long, master's three and one half feet, and doctor's four feet.

For all academic purposes, including trimmings for the doctor's gown, edgings of hoods, and tassels of caps, the colors associated with the different subjects are as follows:

Agriculture	Maize	Library Science	Lemon
Arts, Letters, Humanities	White	Music	Pink
Business, Commerce	Drab	Pharmacy	Olive Green
Education	Light Blue	Philosophy	Dark Blue
Engineering	Orange	Physical Education	Sage Green
Forestry	Russet	Science	Golden Yellow
Home Economics	Maroon	Theology	Scarlet
Law	Purple	Veterinary Science	Gray

The silk or satin lining of the hood is the color or colors of the university or college which conferred the degree. Some have a slash or chevron of contrasting color. For example:

University Granting Degree	Lining	Slash or Chevron
University of Wisconsin	Bright Red
University of Minnesota	Old Gold	Maroon
Yale University	Blue
University of California	Gold	Yale Blue
University of Washington	Purple Above Gold
University of Oregon	Lemon Yellow	Dark Green
New York University	Violet
Stanford University	Cardinal
Columbia University	Light Blue	White
University of Michigan	Maize	Blue
University of Texas	White Above Orange	Burnt Orange
Duke University	Royal Blue	White
Cornell University	Cardinal	Two White
Harvard University	Crimson
Michigan State University	Green	White
Iowa State University	Gold Above Cardinal
State University of Iowa	Old Gold

The Naval Postgraduate School hood has a satin lining of dark blue with a gold chevron.
